DEDICATION

For many years now, John Barclay has devoted himself to the cultivation of Weston High School's drama program. One need only look at the professional quality of his productions to discern his great talent for the theatre.

Yet more important again is his personality: John Barclay's is an affable and dynamic nature, and these two traits combine to make everything he does invitingly friendly and exciting. Whether it be in one of his regular English classes, on stage, or in any other school activity, his enthusiasm for hard work and perfection are contagious.

The great number of persons interested in drama at Weston attests not only to his popularity, but equally to the sense of involvement Mr. Barclay gives to those participating. One can learn practically anything under his tutelage, and, in so doing learn about oneself.

This volume is dedicated then, to a man who has become, in himself, an institution at our school. This he has accomplished with great flair, and with an obvious enjoyment of his work.

Just being with John Barclay is a learning experience.

COMMUNIST PARTY

SENIORS

A SPECIAL RECOGNITION

Mr. Santospago and Mr. Shepard, the class of 1978 thanks you for helping us survive our four years at Weston High School. Our class has hatched some incredible schemes, but your practicality and steadfastness turned our half-baked ideas into feasible projects. Without you our carnivals would have been fiascos and hundreds of towels would still be strewn about room 38, unsorted and undelivered. The technical skills and experience you possess saved "Opening Night" from disaster.

The time, consideration and total personal commitment that you have so willingly given to us has been invaluable.

There are places I'll remember
All my life though
Some have changed
Some forever not for better
Some have gone —

I still can recall
Some are dead and some are living
In my life I've loved them all.

The Poet and the Painter Casting

Shadows on the water — as the sun plays on the infantry returning from the sea. The do-er and the thinker: no allowance for the other as the failing light illuminates the Mercenary's Creed. The home fire burning: the kettle almost boiling — but the master of the house is far away. The horses stamping — their warm breath clouding in the sharp and frosty morning of the day. And the poet lifts his pen as the soldier sheathes his sword.

The cloud-capp'd towers,

Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain;
Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink

Love cannot fill the thickened lung with breath,
Nor clean the blood, nor set the fractured bone;
Yet many a man is making friends with death
Even as I speak, for lack of love alone.
It well may be that in a difficult hour,
Pinned down by pain and moaning for release,
Or nagged by want past resolution's power,
I might be driven to sell your love for peace,
Or trade the memory of this right for food.

What do you know?
You know what you perceive
What can you show?
Nothing of what you believe
And as you grow,
Each thread of life that you leave
Will spin around your deeds
And dictate your needs
As you sell your soul
And you sow your seeds
And you wound yourself
And your loved one bleeds
And your habits grow
And your conscience feeds
On all that you thought you should be
I never thought this could happen to me.

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the beat which he hears, however measured or far away.

Henry David Thoreau

INGRID ALLYN STUART June 14

Sure enough when winter came, the carefree hedonistic grasshopper died. But the ant died too, without ever really having lived at all.

It's like a book, I think, this bloomin' world
Which you can read and care for
just so long
But presently you feel that you
will die
Unless you get the page you're
readin' done,
An' turn another — likely not so
good;
But what you're after is to turn
'em all.

Rudyard Kipling

ELIZABETH TENCA April 15

Dreams so they say,
Are for the fools and they let them
drift away
Peace, like the silent dove
Should be flying, but it's only just begun
Like Columbus in the olden days
We must all gather our courage
Sail our ships out on the open seas
Cast away our fears
In all the years, that come and go
And pick us up, always up.
We may never pass this way again.

The highway is for gamblers,
Better use your sense
Take what you have gathered from coincidence
The vagabond, he's rapping at your door
He's standing in the clothes that you once wore
Strike another match, go start anew.
And it's all over now, baby blue

The answer they reveal
Life is unreal

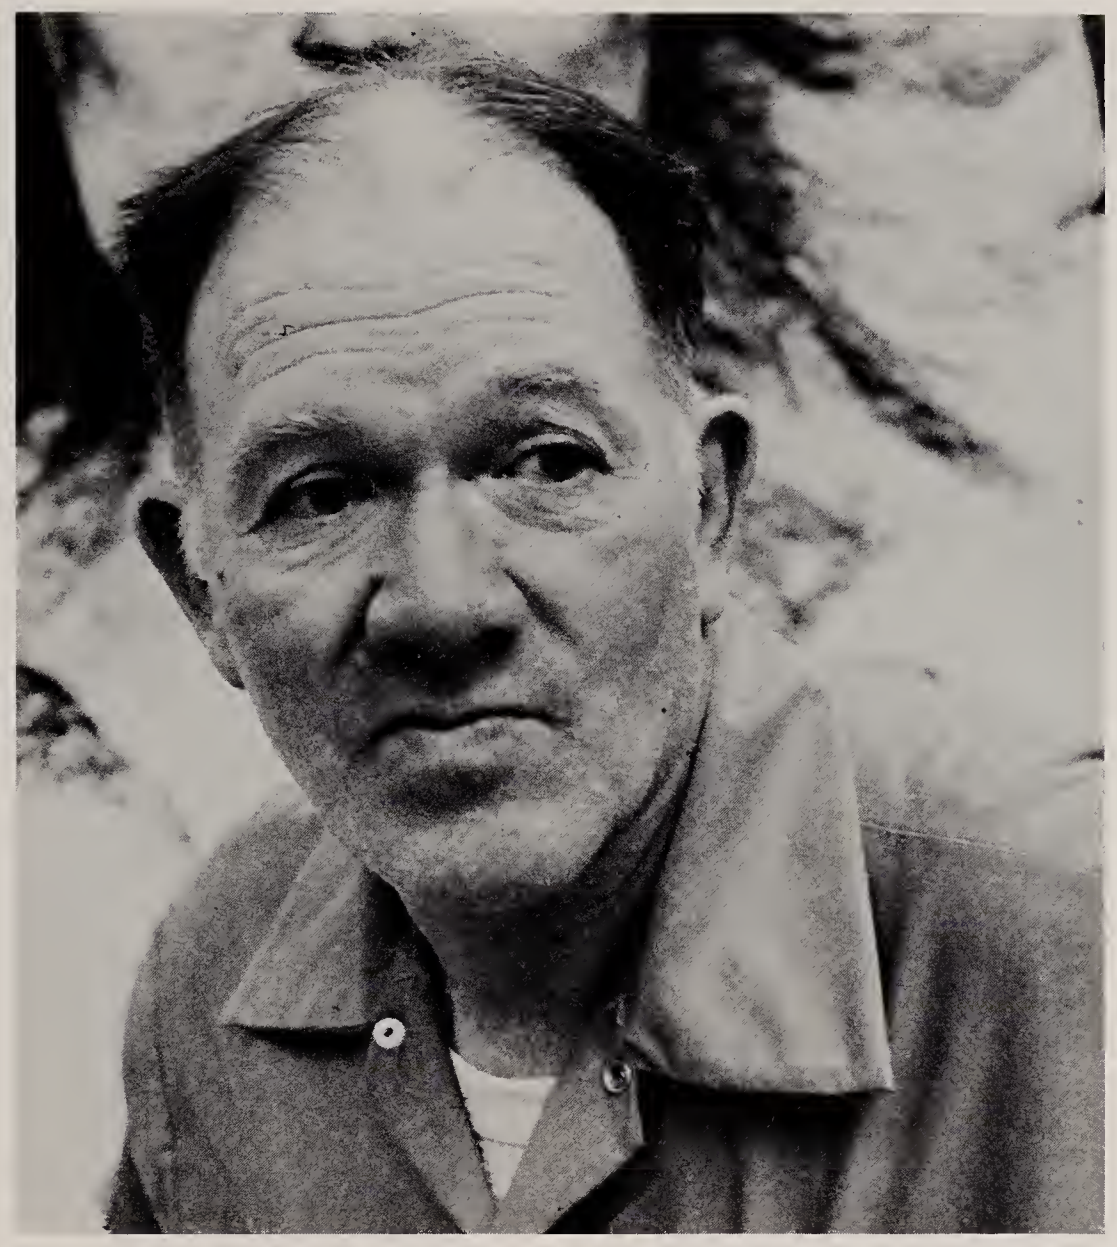
RECOGNITION

Even the best of us prove fallible at times and Joe Jordan is no exception to the rule. In spite of being the father of a member of the class of 1978, Mr. Jordan remains an effective and dedicated teacher.

His fellow workers respect him and his students share in his enthusiasm for chemistry. Energetic and cheerful, he always has a smile for everyone; and never begrudges the long hours that he devotes to helping students learn.

The excellence with which Mr. Jordan commands his field makes him one of the more notable faculty members at Weston High School.

RECOGNITION



We devote this page to the recognition of a very special person at Weston High School — Gus, everyone's favorite janitor.

Gus has earned the respect of everyone who knows him. In a profession not often honored, he has worked unselfishly for almost nine years, making our school a better place in which to work. Though he might on occasion, jokingly describe himself as a "zookeeper in charge of the animals," Gus enjoys being with young people and they like his company; perpetual good humor combined with quick wit imparted with a twinkling eye.

Thank-you Earle DeMerritt, for the many years you have dedicated to Weston. The class of 1978 wishes you the best of luck for the future.
